I have a question/concern about the rules.
Seeing the "I don't support lgbt" in people's signatures really makes me sad, I get that's their belief and all but it's a real kick in the gut to me, someone who is lgbt. I think that should be left out, as I would never say "I don't support Christianity" in my signature, because that's rude and a constant reminder of the fact that some people are rude about religion. (For the record I am Christian). The difference between "lgbt people should burn" and "I personally don't ship or like lgbt stuff but I don't care if you do" isn't apparent in a line like "I don't support lgbt", so I think people should be made to clarify that or leave it out altogether.

@surgeonwerewolf--> Most people don't have that in their SIGGIES. I support it, yes, but it shouldn't be left out. What fun is it when everyone's OCs are straight? I only know one FORUMER that doesn't support it. And about religion, as long as it's not rude to many people it's okay. Let everyone voice their opinions okay? Just as long as they aren't rude.

@Moderator Sarah E. My twin and I were going to make a thread on behalf of both of us, and since we thought it would be unfair for just one of us (the one who posts it) to gain stars, so we thought we could say don't star. Just saw in the rules you can't ask people NOT to star, why is this?
